The LGBTQ+ Board Leadership Opportunity

OUT LEADERSHIP

Introduction from the CEO

Seven years ago, I got a call from Mario Palumbo, a senior out leader in the real estate industry who has been active in the LGBTQ+ movement for many years. Mario had a very direct question for me:

"Why aren't there more out leaders on corporate boards?" "Because LGBTQ+ leaders don't count as diverse to companies and search firms, and currently there are no organizations working to change that," was my quick response. "Well then," he said, "it seems to me that you need to start one."

At that time, Out Leadership was only three years old, we had expanded global CEO summits to Europe, Asia and Australia, and I thought that adding a new program alongside our OutNEXT and OutWomen talent programs was a bridge too far for my small team. But Mario was persistent and gave a great deal of his time and access to his network to help us get off the ground. Other gay leaders quickly volunteered to help (including the incomparable Matt Fust, who has donated 25% of his time for the past five years), and Quorum was born.

I must add that Quorum would not have been possible without early support from the Arcus Foundation, the David Bohnett Foundation and Susan Angele of KPMG's Board Leadership Center, Quorum's first corporate sponsor and its biggest evangelist for the past seven years. I'm proud to share that in 2020, Goldman Sachs, Egon Zehnder and Diligent have joined KPMG in sponsoring Quorum, with additional in-kind support from Equilar.

We built the Quorum LGBTQ+ Board Diversity program around three pillars: policy, talent and advocacy. In 2014, no best practices for LGBTQ+ inclusive board policies existed—so we wrote them. Getting companies to adopt inclusive board policies has taken longer than any of us anticipated. In reality, there was no incentive for them to do so until we focused on pension funds and investment managers. A major breakthrough for our board inclusion work was helping California and New York City and State add LGBTQ+ to the definition of required board diversity for their roughly $3 trillion of pension fund assets.

In parallel with our policy and advocacy work, we built a database of self-identified LGBTQ+ leaders who were interested in board service. In partnership with KPMG, we developed board readiness seminars and workshops and delivered these to our database of board candidates. Knowing race and gender were (and are) still the main focus of most corporate board diversity efforts, we included participants in our OutWomen initiative and built partnerships with all the other board diversity organizations in the United States (Black Corporate Directors Conference, Latino Corporate Directors, ASCEND Pinnacle, Women Corporate Directors and the 30% Club). LGBTQ+ leaders are intersectional by definition—I knew we could lift all tides together.

Founder & CEO
Out Leadership

Today, Quorum convenes senior leadership events and board readiness seminars, and works with organizations around the world to help place LGBTQ+ board members. Since 2019, thanks to our partnership with the Australian Institute of Corporate Directors, Quorum has also made great inroads on the Australian Stock Exchange (ASX). We hope to engage supportive companies to help us expand Quorum's board work alongside Out Leadership's current initiatives in Europe, Asia and South America in the coming years.

The research you're holding represents the most comprehensive and far-reaching assessment of the current state and efforts to increase the participation of LGBTQ+ people in boardrooms. It includes the first-ever LGBTQ+ Inclusive Fortune 500 Board Diversity Matrix, which is the culmination of significant research and support provided by Ropes & Gray, one of our global sponsors.

Importantly, as with all of Out Leadership's global research, I hope you find this piece to be tactical, offering concrete actions stakeholders in any organization can take to accelerate the pace of change. It comes as the movement for LGBTQ+ inclusion on boards of directors continues to accelerate with recent LGBTQ+ board inclusion announcements by Nasdaq, the State of California and Goldman Sachs, which have made global headlines, showing the increased momentum for Quorum's work.

Still, as this research shows, there is a long way to go to achieve appropriate levels of LGBTQ+ and overall intersectional representation on boards. Today, only 12 Fortune 500 companies mention sexual orientation and gender identity in their board diversity guidelines. Few, if any, Fortune 500 boards ask for LGBTQ+ metrics in their annual Director & Officer Questionnaire, and less than 0.4% of directors in the Fortune 500 are LGBTQ+.

Over the past seven years, the most common refrain I've heard when I've pushed for LGBTQ+ board inclusion is "Well, there's just no data." Thanks to the work of Quorum, our sponsors and our partners, with this research, that is no longer the case. It's now up to each of us to ensure this report gets in the hands of decision-makers and create the change we want to see on corporate boards and, ultimately, the world.

With gratitude,

Why This Research Matters

More than 20 years of research on corporate board diversity suggests that companies are most effective when their boards are diverse, equitable and inclusive.

While great strides have been made in increasing gender, racial and ethnic diversity on corporate boards, diversity of sexual orientation and gender identity has unfortunately lagged behind—it is rarely a part of the discussion. There are many reasons for this, including the fact that the understanding of “diversity” continues to be limited to gender, race and ethnicity, resulting in limited access for LGBTQ+ people to board positions.

What's at Stake

The vast majority of companies' basic board diversity reporting guidelines have resisted the inclusion of LGBTQ+ identified metrics, often under the excuse of privacy. Interestingly, however, thousands of companies globally do offer LGBTQ+ employees the opportunity to self-identify—just not at the board level. As we saw with the pushback against employee Self-ID in our prior Visibility Counts research, lack of data on LGBTQ+ board leaders, and how and why companies need them, has been a tremendous roadblock. With the publication of this research, we hope to remove that excuse.

The stakes of allowing LGBTQ+ representation to lag behind are high. As our research and the research of many esteemed institutions in this report demonstrate, board diversity is good for business. To be clear, most research shows great correlation, but less direct causation, from increased board diversity. Companies whose boards have greater diversity are often more progressive on other interconnected metrics that also contribute to greater shareholder return. Given the significant positive return from this correlation, companies can't afford to maintain the status quo. By continuing to exclude LGBTQ+ individuals from their boards, companies are foregoing the significant benefits LGBTQ+ diversity affords, incurring significant risk and ultimately neglecting their fiduciary responsibility to their stakeholders and organizations.

Over the past 10 years, Out Leadership has promoted LGBTQ+ inclusion and its role in providing companies with what we call Return on Equality™ through CEO-hosted summits, cutting-edge research and business-led advocacy on five continents. Quorum,¹ one of its talent accelerators, is the first and only global advocacy and development initiative seeking LGBTQ+ representation in the corporate boardroom. Quorum's database includes more than 1,000 self-identified LGBTQ+ board-ready leaders, and connects to a larger and intersectional pipeline of tens of thousands more leaders through Out Leadership's global network. Quorum's research and board diversity guidelines have advised and guided hundreds of companies on better governance, and have been leveraged by policy leaders as well as pension funds across the United States, the United Kingdom and Australia.

When Out Leadership launched Quorum seven years ago, only two companies in the Fortune 500—and no companies outside of the United States—included LGBTQ+ as a metric for board diversity. Since then, Out Leadership has sparked conversations around the world and produced research and guidelines that drove the adoption of LGBTQ+ inclusive policies in 12 additional Fortune 500 companies. Out Leadership's research on LGBTQ+ board representation also impacted state policy (California's AB 979), prompted the inclusion of LGBTQ+ inclusive diversity requirements for the pension funds of New York and California, and was extensively dollars and cents, numerous studies have shown for decades that LGBTQ+ employees are loyal, empathetic and better educated than the general national population on average—qualities that companies should seek at all levels of an organization.

Goldman Sachs Commitment at DAVOS

In 2020 Goldman Sachs announced that they will no longer take a company public without diversity on his board— and for Goldman that includes LGBTQ+.

quoted in Nasdaq's proposal to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), in December 2020, to require board diversity reporting for listed companies.² Despite this progress, however, the majority of public companies in the United States and around the world still do not use LGBTQ+ as a metric for board diversity, and less than 1% of the 5,000+ board seats in the Fortune 500 are occupied by out LGBTQ+ individuals.

Companies ignore this growing demographic at their own peril. As a customer base, LGBTQ+ people have among the highest per capita wealth of any diverse group, with global estimated wealth in 2019 of $23 trillion, and a conservative population estimate of 371 million.³ Out Leadership estimates the global purchasing power of the LGBTQ+ community to be between $3.7-4 trillion annually, and this does not account for the Ally Marketplace (those who choose to do business with LGBTQ+-friendly companies), which Out Leadership estimates to be eight to ten times larger than the LGBTQ+ market itself. Beyond

The findings in this report confirm the ideas that drive Out Leadership's mission—that LGBTQ+ representation is integral to diversity of perspective and, ultimately, to good business. The intersectional nature of the LGBTQ+ community—which comprises members of every gender, race, religion, ability, national origin and more—means that increased representation of LGBTQ+ individuals will enable companies to increase diversity of perspective across multiple dimensions.

In this research, we aim to:

1. Articulate the case for LGBTQ+ representation on corporate boards to individuals, businesses, investors and the community at large.
2. Offer companies a guide to adding LGBTQ+ representation and self-ID as priorities at the board level.
3. Outline concrete steps that companies, shareholders, and public and private investors can take to effect policy and regulatory changes mandating LGBTQ+ board representation.

"I think from a governance perspective, diversity on boards is a very, very important issue. And we have been very, very focused on it. And so, we're trying to find ways to encourage that. And I come from a position of my own experience where I look at the Goldman Sachs board. We have four women out of 11. We have a Black lead director. I really value the diverse perspectives I'm getting, which are helping me run the company. I look back at IPOs over the last four years, and the performance of IPOs where there's been a woman on the board in the U.S. is significantly better than the performance of IPOs where there hasn't been a woman on the board. So, starting on July 1 in the U.S. and Europe, we're not going to take a company public unless there's one diverse board candidate with a focus on women, and we're going to move toward 2021 requesting two. And we realize that this is a small step, but it's a step in a direction of saying, you know what, we think this is right, we think it's the right advice. And we're in a position also because of our network to help our clients if they need help placing women on boards. And so, this is an example of our saying how can we do something that we think is right and helps move the market forward?"

Board Diversity in the Fortune 500

Early in 2020, when Out Leadership embarked on this research, there was no data on LGBTQ+ board leadership other than Out Leadership's past Quorum research, which was used as the foundation for this first-ever LGBTQ+ board research. Despite widespread recognition of the importance of board diversity, and increased focus on board diversity policies, a detailed report of each company's policies did not exist.

Current State of LGBTQ+ Board Diversity

Out Leadership and its partners spent a number of months in 2020 reviewing every single proxy and board statement from every company in the Fortune 500, and distilled the following data, which produced the first-ever complete Fortune 500 LGBTQ+ Inclusive Board Diversity Report, included in full in Appendix A.

by the same individuals. Similarly, women hold only 22.5% of total seats, with Black, indigenous and people of color (BIPOC) women holding a paltry 2.6% of board director roles. Only 8.4% of Fortune 500 board seats are held by Black Americans of both genders.⁴ Of the 25 LGBTQ+ seats only two are held by LGBTQ+ BIPOC.

- 358 Fortune 500 companies do not have a board diversity policy at all⁶
- ONLY five Fortune 500 companies have any LGBTQ+ policies within their proxy statements

Of the 5,670 board seats in the Fortune 500, only 25 seats (0.4%) are held by out LGBTQ+ people, and some of those seats are held by the same individuals.

For more information, please refer to the appendix for the

LGBTQ+ - Inclusive Fortune 500 Board Diversity Matrix

From this groundbreaking report, we learned a great deal, including the following:

Of the 5,670 board seats in the Fortune 500, only 25 seats (0.4%) are held by out LGBTQ+ people, and some of those seats are held

The LGBTQ+ data: As barriers to coming out are removed, each generation of LGBTQ+ people has greater visibility. Roughly 5–7% of Baby Boomers identify as LGBTQ+, but, according to GLAAD, more than 20% of Millennials and Gen Z identify as LGBTQ+.⁵

TERMINOLOGY DEFINED

This research uses specific terminology, including terms and abbreviations, when referring to diverse groups. For the sake of accuracy, we have made the decision to refer to these groups based on the context and original wording of data and surveys. For example, where surveys and data use a specific term, such as "Black/African American," we have left the term unchanged rather than use the newer, more inclusive term "BIPOC." In the same way, where surveys we reference included only LGBT people (or even gay and lesbian), versus our preferred inclusive term LGBTQ+, we left LGBT unchanged. The following is a list of terminology used in this document, but is by no means inclusive of all preferred terminology by all communities:

LGBTQ+ Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans, Queer.

The + represents the various other ways that individuals identify their sex or gender, and is inclusive of HIV+ people.

BIPOC Biracial, Indigenous, People of Color.

This is an abbreviation that is considered a more inclusive collective representation of the diversity of this community than "people of color."

"In this document we use the term "people of color" or name the specific group (i.e., Black, Asian, etc.) when that term was used by the research referenced."

LatinX Term used to describe people who are of, or relate to, Latin-American origin or descent. It is a gender-neutral or nonbinary alternative to Latino or Latina.

"Many research organizations used this gender-neutral term to be gender-inclusive, but only 3% of the Latin American population use the terminology themselves."

What Do Corporate Boards Do?

The board of directors oversees management of a corporation and owes duties of care and loyalty to the corporation's shareholders.

Boards typically contain several committees, including audit, compensation, and nominating and governance committees.

A board's responsibilities include strategy and risk (guiding through uncertainty, stakeholder view of risk and corporate purpose), talent and corporate leadership (CEO performance and succession, workforce strategy and culture, goals and incentives), and board effectiveness (self-evaluation improvement, board succession planning and continuous board education). For example, it is the board's responsibility to:

- Oversee corporate strategy and management
- Identify, evaluate and monitor risk
- Provide oversight of audit function and company financial reporting
- Oversee significant corporate events, such as mergers and acquisitions, dividends, equity offerings, and other financings
- Protect shareholder interests and maximize shareholder value

The Case for a Diverse Board

Decades of studies have highlighted the importance of board diversity for governance and efficiency.⁸ While board gender diversity has received by far the most attention from academia and policymakers, there are some studies on overall diversity (including demographics such as age or education) and the impact of racial and ethnic diversity.

The Diversity Imperative

Out Leadership has consolidated more than 30 pieces of research (which can be found in the endnotes) to create this "Top Ten Reasons Board Diversity Is an Imperative"⁹

1. Decreased Groupthink
2. Better Decision-Making
3. Innovation
4. Risk Mitigation
5. CEO Support & Effective Monitoring
6. Improved Corporate Brand
7. Talent Attraction¹⁰
8. Investor Demand
9. Access to New Markets¹¹
10. Increased Shareholder Return

Internally, a diverse board can better relate to its company's employees and customers and connect with the company's environment. With better understanding, boards make smarter decisions, identify and take advantage of opportunities, and create value for the business.¹² Diverse boards also empower board members to challenge the status quo and minimize groupthink or a "silo mentality."¹³ Research from Columbia University demonstrates that "diverse groups outperformed more homogenous groups not because of a flurry of new ideas, but rather that the heterogeneity prompted a more careful evaluation of the information at hand."¹⁴

Diverse boards may also increase positive external perceptions by demonstrating that companies embrace diversity at the highest levels of the organization and take a "top-down approach"¹⁵ to being a good corporate citizen.¹⁸ This may increase investor confidence¹⁹ and, in turn, create further value for a company.²⁰ Research reveals that improving cognitive diversity on a board can significantly enhance its performance by making other directors more comfortable expressing dissent.²¹

Diverse teams and groups are not better solely for their visible makeup—but also for the culture that is created when diverse perspectives are sought, heard and activated. Ultimately, for board diversity to make a positive impact, boards must seek a broad and inclusive slate of leaders with both acquired and inherent diversity top of mind—tokenism is not a justifiable goal.

Why Aren't There More LGBTQ+ Directors on Corporate Boards?

If it's the case that out LGBTQ+ people are an increasing—and talented—population in the United States and around the world, why aren't they already represented on boards?

A Lack of Representation

Out Leadership surveyed its Quorum membership (LGBTQ+ self-identified board-ready/current board members) in 2018 asking why not sought out, the message was sent that they were not welcome. At all levels of a company, LGBTQ+ people need to feel welcomed policies, an overwhelming majority of CEOs and board members assume that their companies do—and are generally shocked to find out that is not the case. Out Leadership's LGBTQ+ Board Diversity Guidelines were published six years ago (and updated in November 2020) to help companies remedy this exclusion.

At all levels of a company, LGBTQ+ people need to feel welcomed and accepted for them to join, engage and stay.

more out LGBTQ+ board members didn't exist. The question was asked in two parts:

1. "Are there LGBTQ+ leaders who are board members who are simply in the closet?"
2. Or is it the case that, due to lack of inclusion in board recruiting/diversity efforts, LGBTQ+ leaders have been excluded from board opportunities?"

88% chose the latter: "LGBTQ leaders have been excluded from board opportunities."

Because LGBTQ+ leaders did not (and still do not) count and were and accepted for them to join, engage and stay. Since that survey, Out Leadership's research has identified seven main reasons for this lack of LGBTQ+ board representation:

1 Lack of inclusion in diversity recruiting efforts.

Board diversity efforts have, by design, excluded LGBTQ+ identity from searches seeking to identify diverse leaders. Only 12 Fortune 500 companies include LGBTQ+ as a metric for board diversity. Interestingly, when asked whether their companies specifically include LGBTQ+ in their board diversity

2 Perceived "lack of demand" among major search firms for LGBTQ+ board representation from their corporate clients.

In meetings with global leadership of the search firm industry over the past five years, the question was raised as to why LGBTQ+ leaders were not included as a diversity category, despite the diverse perspectives they bring. The resounding answer was "until our clients demand it, we don't have a reason to do it." As a market-based approach, such an answer does have merit. But if these firms had dug slightly deeper, as several like Egon Zehnder have taken the lead to do, they would see tremendous opportunity in being on the cutting edge of LGBTQ+ inclusion. At Out Leadership's CEO Roundtables and CEO-hosted summits around the world over the past 10 years, which have convened more than 600 CEOs and tens of thousands of senior business leaders, this same question has been asked—do you seek LGBTQ+ leaders for senior leadership positions, including board representation? Almost every single leader answers "yes." We hope that this research will help to remedy the disconnect.

0 of 500 Include LGBTQ+ as a Metric

3 Perceived "lack of platform or relevant experience" for LGBTQ+ board representation.

Nominating and governance committees, and search firms that assist larger companies, tend to identify candidates from a pool of existing board members, CFOs and CEOs, and line roles with profit-and-loss (P&L) responsibilities. LGBTQ+ people are often underrepresented in these roles, creating a vicious cycle. "Lavender ceilings"—glass ceilings specifically imposed on LGBTQ+ people—remain in many companies, and these barriers particularly affect lesbians and trans individuals. In addition, board positions are often filled through informal networks such as the golf course or a vacationing spot, which remain de facto segregated. One search firm recently approached Quorum looking for LGBTQ+ candidates with experience in the Cabinet of the United States, when the first openly gay Cabinet member in history was nominated only last month.

4 Gaps in data collection and reporting.

Over the past 15 years, more and more companies are asking LGBTQ+ employees to self-identify, both in employee satisfaction surveys as well as within their HRIS²³ systems. As of 2020, 54% of the 1,049 major companies who filled out the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index allow LGBTQ+ self-identification for their employees. Despite broad adoption of self-identification by major companies, myths still exist regarding the legality of such questions as well as misconceptions on whether LGBTQ+ people are actually eager to self-identify when given the opportunity. In 2019, Out Leadership and Ropes & Gray published the first-ever global research on employee self-identification processes (Visibility Counts), finding that companies offer the opportunity to self-ID to employees in 36 countries around the world—including in countries where same-sex relationships are criminalized. Those companies found increased engagement from LGBTQ+ employees, increased opportunities for career support and advancement, and even additional opportunities to advocate for equality in countries where they do business.

There are many misconceptions around the legality of self-identification in the workplace, particularly in global contexts. This research highlighted the ways companies implement self-ID programs, even in countries with

Beginning in the fall of 2020, Out Leadership began to reach out individually to more than 300 corporate secretaries ahead of the 2021 "proxy season," asking them to collect and report data on the sexual orientation and gender identity of their board members, and shared the Out Leadership LGBTQ+ Board Diversity Guidelines. "Proxy season" refers to the period between mid-April and mid-June when most large publicly traded companies hold annual meetings about six months after the end of their fiscal year. Ahead of these filings, companies typically send—increasingly digitally—in January a D&O (Directors & Officers) Questionnaire to their board members.

Out Leadership, with Quorum partner Ropes & Gray, has developed a turnkey solution to self-identification: template questions on demographic diversity, including sexual orientation and gender identity to include in that questionnaire and a template board matrix to report on the findings in companies' filings. This is particularly useful to companies as they often have doubts on the terminology to be used particularly when it comes to gender identity.

Does Your Company ask LGBTQ+ inclusive questions (Out Leadership could not identify a single company that does) restrictive government policies or less inclusive cultural realities. Self-ID is a useful tool both to meet the needs of an organization's workforce and for the bottom line. It is clear that when employees are given the opportunity to self-identify as LGBTQ+, many do. If thousands of companies already successfully offer the option to their rank-and-file employees to self-identify, why would they not ask the most prominent leaders of their companies—their boards—to do the same?

5 Anti-LGBTQ+ discrimination in policy and practice.

LGBTQ+ people live in a world where honesty about their identity could cost them friends, family, employment and housing. Same-sex relationships are still illegal in 70 countries, with the death penalty on the books in 12. Even in the United States, prior to the Supreme Court case Bostock v. Clayton County (June

There is a generational aspect to this discrimination as well. The Baby Boomer generation of the LGBTQ+ community grew up in a world where it was not possible to be out at work, at home or in the military—homosexuality was still considered a mental disorder by the American Psychological Association

United States is 62.7—squarely in the Boomer generation, which has the lowest number of these out leaders. Finally, we should also note that HIV/AIDS created a gap of gay men in this generation of potential board members, killing more than 700,000 Americans since 1981—an incalculable loss of life and talent.

If thousands of companies already successfully offer the option to their rank and file employees to self-identify, why would they not ask the most prominent leaders of their companies—their boards—to do the same?

Inclusive policies alone will not solve this problem. Despite 91% of the Fortune 500 companies prohibiting discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity, Out Leadership's most recent AllyUp™ global ally research found that 58% of employees are still in the closet in the United States.²⁵ 2020), state law did not protect against employee discrimination based on sexual orientation or gender identity in more than 27 states. Anti-LGBTQ+ animus, especially rooted in religious terms, is a daily fact of life for LGBTQ+ people.

until 1973 and by the American Psychoanalytic Association until 1991. As a result, fewer LGBTQ+ people of that generation were out in their careers. According to Equilar, the average age of corporate board members in the 6 Self-exclusion. Because of the hurdles they encounter in their career, many LGBTQ+ people often fail to reach for board positions even when they have the experience, skills and qualifications that boards seek.

LGBTQ+ people suffer more from "impostor syndrome"—a psychological pattern in which individuals doubt their skills, talents or accomplishments—than their heterosexual peers, and they are sometimes convinced that these positions are not ones they can aspire to or reach for. Lack of visible role models in many industries, and on almost every single board in the United States, reinforces this notion. As the saying goes, "you can't be what you can't see."

7 Low turnover and long tenure of board members.

According to a 2020 report by Esgauge and The Conference Board, the pace of board member turnover in U.S. publicly traded companies remains low, and the report notes, "these figures are substantially comparable to those recorded in recent years, and data on director age and tenure of existing board members have also remained remarkably stable."²⁶

Not coincidentally, director term limits or mandatory retirement policies based on tenure remain uncommon among U.S. publicly traded companies: Only 3% of Russell 3000 companies and 6% of S&P 500 companies had such a policy in 2019.²⁷ Lack of Turnover = Roadblocks to Change.

Gender Diversity as a Model

In contrast to the relatively new, and until now invisible, case for LGBTQ+ board representation, the movement for greater gender diversity has been led by organizations globally for decades—with mixed results. One success story comes from the United Kingdom, from The 30% Club, an organization whose goal was to help ensure that 30% of board seats for FTSE (Financial Times Stock Exchange) 100²⁸ companies were held by women. Established in 2010, the group met its goal in the United Kingdom in September 2018, and continues to push for greater female representation on corporate boards around the world.

The newest data in the United Kingdom specifically shared from the 30% Club and The Pipeline underscores how the lack of representation at top levels of executive leadership impacts the board representation pipeline for senior women leaders:²⁹

Where are the Women Leaders?

Investment Managers by Gender - FTSE 350

Proportion of P&L Roles by Gender - FTSE 350

Net profit margin by proportion of women on Executive Committee - FTSE 350 - 2017-2020

Betteridge, M. (2020, July 31). Women Count 2020., from <https://www.execpipeline.com/women-count-2020/>

As mentioned before, several studies have demonstrated that greater board gender diversity is correlated with improved efficiency, diversity of thought and performance for both the board and the company. Credit Suisse reported that companies with more than one woman on their board returned a compound 2% over those with no female board members.³⁰ Further, the report indicated that companies with more women at the board or top management level "exhibit higher returns on equity, higher valuations and also higher payout ratios."³¹ A McKinsey study found that "in the United Kingdom, greater gender diversity on the senior-executive team corresponded to the highest performance uplift in [the] data set: for every 10 per cent increase in gender diversity, EBIT (Earnings before interest and taxes)³² rose by 3.5 per cent."³³

An important marker of inclusion on board gender diversity is the decrease in all-male boards

among companies listed on the S&P 500;³⁴ the last index member with an all-male board added its first female director in 2019.³⁵ In 2019, for example, women comprised nearly half of S&P's³⁶ newly appointed directors, and 10% of these directors identified as women of color.³⁷ Among U.S.-based Fortune 500 companies, women now hold 26% of total board positions.³⁸

Racial & Ethnic Diversity as a Model

Although diversity based on race and ethnicity has slowly increased in overall representation at the board level, much more work needs to be done. Progress remains slow, particularly compared to that of gender.³⁹

Approximately 10% of Russell 3000 directors currently identify as part of an ethnic minority group,⁴⁰ and 15% of new directors in 2020 of Russell 3000 companies identify as part of an ethnic minority group. The lack of Latinx⁴¹

corporate directors has drawn particular attention.⁴² The Latino Corporate Directors Association notes that fewer than 4% of all Fortune 500 board seats are held by those who identify as Latinx, even though this population accounts for more than 18% of the U.S. population and more than $2 trillion in purchasing power.⁴³

According to research, "companies in the top quartile for ethnic/cultural diversity on executive teams were 33% more likely to have industry-leading profitability."⁴⁴ Again, while direct causation is somewhat more difficult to prove, this correlation is shown time and again, globally.

Comparing Gender Diversity on Boards Across the United States

According to the Q2 2020 Equilar Gender Diversity Index (GDI), by the second half of 2020, women occupied almost 23% of Russell 3000 board seats. During Q2 2020, the GDI reached 0.46, the highest point since its inception, where 1.0 represents diversity amongst men and women. With gender diversity rising nationwide, some states are closer to reaching equal representation than others (see appendix for full Equilar Gender Diversity Index).⁴⁵

New Mexico-based companies still has the highest representation of women on boards at 40%, with companies based in Rhode Island and Maine both falling into the next spot at 30%.

Annually, Out Leadership publishes its annual LGBTQ+ Business Climate Index and CEO Business Briefs for all 50 states with 20 objective metrics in five categories:

- Legal & Nondiscrimination Protection
- Youth & Family Support
- Political & Religious Attitudes
- Health Access & Safety
- Work Environment & Employment

While diversity requirements and quotas may seem simplistic—and problematic to some—for the time being, they seem to be the only option to create systemic change while also expanding the opportunity pool for diverse talent. As we've seen for decades, without these progressive actions, the status quo will remain firmly entrenched. Additionally, the disclosures and reporting we're seeking will give way to better, more accurate tracking of statistics and trends that can create important shifts in diversity, nomination processes and board management overall. All of these positive outcomes from increased diversity, however, are predicated on an inclusive, open-minded and non-hierarchical board culture that actively seeks to leverage difference. Bringing diverse leaders into a closed culture, where they feel tokenized and ignored, will not only fail, but will set companies further back from where they began.

In light of the overdue calls for racial justice around the world, racial diversity has come to the forefront of many corporate conversations, putting more pressure on companies to analyze the diversity throughout their organizations, especially in their leadership. If this pressure leads to more concentrated diversity and representation efforts from the companies themselves, legislation may cease to play as large a role in the diversification of boards. Until then, however, states like California with legislation requiring and creating diverse perspectives will be the beneficiaries of diversity of thought in boardrooms and, in turn, more effective and innovative companies.

Bringing diverse leaders into a closed culture, where they feel tokenized and ignored, will not only fail, but will set companies further back from where they began.

As with board diversity, Out Leadership's Climate Index shows a clear connection between LGBTQ+ inclusion and better business outcomes, talent attraction and overall inclusion.

After many years of advocacy by many groups including the DCDC and Out Leadership, a new law, AB 979, was signed in California to require boards of companies based in California to appoint directors from underrepresented communities. This bill, intended to expand board diversity to include race, ethnicity and sexual orientation, was the first of its kind to include LGBTQ+ people.

Legislation that removes discrimination and creates equal opportunity to participate in society has a direct positive bottom-line impact for companies and countries alike. For example, marriage equality in the United States has proven to boost the economy and help businesses' and organizations' ability to recruit and retain top LGBTQ+ talent.⁴⁶

Inclusive States Attract Better Talent

We congratulate all of the states that showed positive momentum over the last year, and call on those whose scores decreased to work with private and public leaders to push for more inclusive laws and practices to encourage inclusivity. Discrimination is fundamentally bad for business.

Business Impact of Opening Gay Marriage to Same-Sex Couples

Williams Institute's Business Impact of Opening Gay Marriage to Same-Sex Couples

In 2015 The Williams Institute estimated that after marriage for same-sex couples is allowed in all states, a combined total of $2.6 B could be generated. This economic boost can lead to $184.7M in state and local tax revenue and support 13,058 jobs.

Each circle represents one of the fifty states, or the District of Columbia.

Circles are sized according to estimated wedding spending by couples and their out-of-state guests within the first 3 years marriage is allowed.

Total estimated economic boost for all states combined:

$2.62B

5 years later we now know that number is

The Case for LGBTQ+ Representation

Although overall ethnic and gender diversity is increasing on boards, the LGBTQ+ community has been largely left out of the conversation until recently.

Expanding the Definition

Since 2013, Out Leadership's Quorum Initiative has been advocating for LGBTQ+ board representation through a four-pillar strategy:

1. Expand LGBTQ+ Inclusive Board Diversity Policies

We encourage companies to amend their board diversity policies to be LGBTQ+ inclusive (and to create and publish a diversity policy if one does not exist). To make this as easy as possible, Out Leadership created its LGBTQ+ Board Diversity Guidelines, which includes best practice policies, corporate resolutions and FAQs. First published in 2015, and updated this year, the guidelines have helped 10 Fortune 500 companies amend their board policies and have been extensively quoted in legislation: Out Leadership Board Diversity Guidelines.

2. Collect & Report LGBTQ+ Board Data

We encourage companies to collect and report data on the sexual orientation and gender identity of their board members, in the same way that thousands of companies collect and report data on LGBTQ+ employees. In addition to the Out Leadership LGBTQ+ Board Diversity Guidelines, companies can reference

Out Leadership's Visibility Counts research, published with Ropes & Gray in 2019 for best practices (including how to navigate privacy and GDPR concerns). Beginning in fall 2020, Out Leadership reached out to 300+ corporate secretaries, suggesting concrete ways and best practices to include relevant questions in Directors and Officers (D&O) Questionnaires ahead of the 2021 proxy season.

3. Create Demand in the Market for LGBTQ+ Board Members

Out Leadership's successful work to include LGBTQ+ diversity in pension fund investment mandates (in California and New York thus far), as well as supporting state-level (California) and index-level (Nasdaq) LGBTQ+ inclusive mandates, are a great start to create demand for LGBTQ+ board members. Increasingly, mutual funds and other institutional investors (such as the Yale Endowment) are adopting proxy voting guidelines for their portfolio companies that include LGBTQ+ inclusive diverse boards.⁴⁷

4. Create the Supply of LGBTQ+ Board Candidates

Over the past seven years, Out

Leadership's Quorum initiative has developed a database of qualified LGBTQ+ board candidates and existing directors to be included in nominating and governance committees slates. Working with partners like Quorum founding sponsor KPMG as well as global partners like the Australian Institute of Corporate Directors, Quorum has connected thousands of leaders to board readiness education seminars, board mentoring and board placement opportunities.

The past 12 months have seen an unprecedented leap in visibility for LGBTQ+ board leadership, from California to the Nasdaq, and the momentum seems to be increasing.

Simply increasing the number of diverse individuals, whether on a company's board or in the broader workforce, will not create benefits for the company's business.⁴⁸ According to research described in the Harvard Business Review, companies should do more than take an "add diversity and stir" approach, and should appreciate that reaping the benefits of diversity requires seeding and nurturing a culture that embraces diversity.⁴⁹

The Power of Difference

As the Business Roundtable (BRT) has recently commented, "America's largest employers know that the economy works best when employees can be who they are, without fear of bias, discrimination, and inequality." Todd Sears, a former investment banker and the CEO of Out Leadership, describes the advantage of investment in LGBTQ+ inclusion as the "Return on Equality™": "The openly LGBTQ+ population is diverse, and growing. Companies improve their bottom lines through LGBTQ+ inclusion, as both LGBTQ+ consumers and straight allies increasingly make purchasing decisions based on a company's commitment to equality and inclusivity. Additionally, as the LGBTQ+ community is both invisible and also multidimensional by definition, forward-thinking companies that include LGBTQ+ leaders in their board diversity plans and goals will also see increased representation of women, people of color, and other minorities." Boards are increasingly deepening their oversight on issues such as talent, culture, equity, inclusion and diversity. Given America's changing demographics and attitudes, as well as the impact that LGBTQ+ inclusive policies may have on the company's bottom line, boards should take the opportunity to assess whether the LGBTQ+ related policies and practices of the company and the board are oriented toward the future. If the board has not already engaged in such discussions, the following questions provide a good place to start. (Note: While the term LGBTQ+ specifically refers to the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer communities, it is used here to include all gender and sexual minorities. Third-party quotes, if different, will adhere to the term used by the quoted party.)

The board sets the tone for the entire organization, and diversity and inclusion should start at the top. A recent survey by Out Leadership's Quorum Initiative and Ropes & Gray found that openly LGBTQ+ executives hold just 25, or approximately 0.42%, of the 5,670 seats on the boards of companies comprising the Fortune 500—a rate that is far less than the 10% of the overall population that identifies as LGBTQ+.⁵⁰

Susan M. Angele is a Senior Advisor with the KPMG Board Leadership Center.

"This article originally appeared in the National Association of Corporate Directors, "The Power of Difference: An anthology of expert perspectives on how boards can build cultures of inclusion." \(link\)

Board-level diversity conversations have primarily been focused on gender, with racial and ethnic diversity becoming another necessary area of attention. With few exceptions, sexual orientation has not historically been a focus of board diversity. This started to change a few years ago, and definitions of board diversity, both in company policies and proxy voting guidelines, are starting to include references to LGBTQ+ diversity. For example, in 2017, the "Boardroom Accountability Project 2.0" of the Office of the New York City Comptroller recommended that companies describe the composition of their boards in a matrix format that includes sexual orientation along with other demographic characteristics. According to Quorum, based on Fortune 500 data from the 2019 proxy season, 12 publicly traded U.S. companies specify sexual orientation and/or gender identity in their board diversity statements, an increase from just two companies in 2016. Just as an LGBTQ+ inclusive organization provides the company with a competitive advantage, LGBTQ+ inclusive board policies and search practices do so as well, by expanding the network for talented board candidates and adding to the diversity of perspectives in the boardroom. And companies that disclose their board and organizational diversity policies and statistics are sending a message to rising talent within the organization, as well as to investors and other stakeholders, that the company is committed to diversity and is attuned to the interests of an important and growing group of stakeholders.

Case Studies from Egon Zehnder's Diversity Tracker™

Another perspective to understand the importance of LGBTQ+ representation on corporate boards can be seen through the experience and impact of the few LGBTQ+ out board members themselves. Egon Zehnder, which joined as one of Out Leadership's Quorum global sponsors in 2020, annually publishes a "Board Diversity Tracker."

Through our partnership, Out Leadership™ helped Egon Zehnder include data and context for LGBTQ+ board members in its Diversity Tracker, making the 2020 Tracker the first global board diversity tracker to be LGBTQ+ inclusive. Egon Zehnder also leveraged the Quorum database to seek out LGBTQ+ board case studies, two of which appear in the Tracker and here >

"We have to get different types of people to come here. Because that will make sure the company is around for another 300 years."

Case 1

Dame Inga Beale

Former CEO of Lloyd's of London

Dame Inga Beale has always been a trailblazer. An early standout as one of the top executives in the world of insurance, she became the first woman CEO of the more than three-century-old Lloyd's of London in 2014, stepping down in 2018. She was also one of the first top executives to self-identify as bisexual and has used her platform to argue forcefully for inclusion on boards and inside executive teams. D&I wasn't Beale's top priority when she first took the Lloyd's job, but that soon changed: "What I was hired to do was a major transformation. And I first of all thought, 'Why have all the previous attempts failed?' It became so apparent to me that it was full of clones of white men. And then I thought, 'Well, perhaps there's a correlation between that and why they've not modernized. Where are the new ideas coming from?' And then I thought, 'We have to get different types of people to come here. Because that will make sure the company is around for another 300 years.'"

Beale is supportive of the progress that some boards have made on gender, but she doesn't necessarily believe that the same approach should be used when it comes to gaining LGBTQ+ representation or other forms of diversity.

"This is not a protected characteristic,"

Beale says. "We can't force people to give it. When I arrived at Lloyd's, we had very few people filling that box in as to their sexuality. As soon as we started talking about inclusion, when I started using words like lesbian, gay, bisexual in town halls, we shot up immediately to 90 percent of people declaring their sexuality. But you've got to have this safe environment."

Case 2

Jim Fitterling

CEO of The Dow Chemical Company and Out Leadership Global Advisory Board member

Jim Fitterling has spent his entire career at Dow. By 2008, he was moving rapidly through the executive ranks. He was also a closeted gay man who had never shared his identity with anyone in his professional life.

Then Jim's world was turned upside down when he was diagnosed with stage-four cancer. While being treated, he came to a revelation: "I took a look at my life and said, 'There's some stresses that I need to relieve, and one is that I was trying to live two lives.'" Fitterling decided to go public, first to the board and leadership team at Dow, and then, in 2014, to the entire employee base during an internal broadcast. "The support I got was terrific," says Jim. "I look back and say, 'How much of my staying in the closet were fears that were in my own head?'"

Coming out also transformed Jim's leadership style (he was named CEO of Dow Inc. in 2018). He realized how much it mattered to have role models, which he had never benefited from. "There are many other people in the world who are dealing with the same thing," he says. "If they don't hear leaders talking about it, they may feel more pressure to keep that bottled up, and that's not a good thing." Inclusion also became a key part of Dow's new ambition: to be the most innovative, customer-centric, inclusive and sustainable material science company in the world. "You can't do one without the other, and that drives from the boardroom down to the shop floor," Jim explains, noting how much emphasis the company has placed on boardroom diversity. "When people come to work, they need to feel like they have a chance for advancement," he says. "If they don't see themselves in middle management and upper management of a company, and if they don't see it on the board, they struggle to feel they belong."

"When people come to work, they need to feel like they have a chance for advancement..."

What We are Asking of Companies & Leaders

Out Leadership has developed a list of concrete and immediate actions that companies, shareholders, and public and private investors should take to increase representation of LGBTQ+ people on corporate boards.

Companies: Internal

- 1. Adopt LGBTQ+ inclusive board diversity and reporting guidelines, and report data on LGBTQ+ representation. This should be consistently tied to broader diversity efforts and, ideally, self-identification of rank-and-file employees. Quorum developed turnkey governance and reporting guidelines that companies can use [\[see link\]](#).
- 2. Require LGBTQ+ inclusive diverse candidate slates and board succession plans. Proactively reach out to the Quorum database to identify LGBTQ+ candidates, and require search firms and recruiters present to LGBTQ+ inclusive slates. Train nominating and governance committees on inclusion, and encourage them to expand their search beyond internal recommendations and/or typical profiles. Communicate in the annual report on the process followed for board appointments.
- 3. Foster LGBTQ+ and intersectional “board-ready” talent. Deepen the talent pool of directors by grooming diverse leaders for board positions. Provide them with support to reach positions that are traditional stepping stones to board positions: CEO, CFO or line roles with profit-and-loss (P&L) responsibilities. Ensure that underrepresented talent, including LGBTQ+ employees, have committed mentors and sponsors, and equip them with the knowledge and skills needed to address the governance and strategy issues that boards typically face.
- 4. Regularly review board composition against relevant benchmarks, such as the company’s peer group and industry and all public companies. Consider director succession planning, board evaluations and refreshment as part of the efforts to ensure good governance

Amending the SEC’s diversity disclosure requirement

The SEC already has rules requiring board diversity-related disclosure, which companies consider when preparing proxy statements for upcoming annual shareholder meetings. These requirements are outlined in Regulation S-K Items 401(e)(1) and 407(c)(2)(vi). Item 401(e)(1) requires a brief discussion of the specific experience, qualifications, attributes or skills that led to the conclusion that the person should serve as a director in light of the company’s business and structure. Item 407(c)(2)(vi) requires a description of the nominating committee’s process for identifying and evaluating nominees for director, including whether, and if so how, it considers diversity in identifying director nominees.

However, rather than providing a specific definition of diversity, the Compliance and Disclosure Interpretations (CD&I) provides a non-exhaustive list of examples of diverse characteristics that a company could consider for purposes of 401(e)(1) and 407(c)(2)(vi), including “race, gender, ethnicity, religion, nationality, disability, sexual orientation, or cultural background.” CD&I explains, “We believe that for purposes of this disclosure requirement, companies should be allowed to define diversity in ways that they consider appropriate.”

The current state of disclosure reveals the shortcomings of such rules. For example, fewer than half of all Fortune 100 companies disclose data on the ethnic and gender compositions of their boards, and virtually none report on LGBTQ+ metrics.

Out Leadership and its partners will continue to lobby the agency to change its current rules for disclosing boardroom diversity by defining what diversity means and how to report on it.

Companies: External

1. Make LGBTQ+ diversity commitments and achievements public.

Communicate the adoption of inclusive board guidelines as well as commitments to improve LGBTQ+ and intersectional representation on the board. Set diversity targets inclusive of sexual orientation and gender identity, and disclose these targets and plans for achieving them. These should be communicated in annual reports as well as in proxy and other applicable SEC filings.

2. Use your company's platform to make the case for board diversity.

Companies can use their platform to champion the case for board diversity.

3. Push for regulatory changes.

Support governments and exchanges in continuing to enhance corporate governance rules and guidelines to promote better LGBTQ+ representation on boards. [See Box on previous page]. Encourage state legislatures to pass diversity disclosure requirements for publicly listed companies along the lines of AB 979.

4. Sponsor LGBTQ+ board programs

(such as Quorum) as well as intersectional board diversity efforts. Identifying and presenting a supply of LGBTQ+ board candidates will require significant investment in Quorum and the inclusion of other diverse board candidates (such as Out Leadership partner organizations: Black Corporate Directors, Latino Corporate Directors and ASCEND Pinnacle).

Examples of actions taken by investors and shareholders

In 2018, BlackRock, the world's largest asset manager, indicated that it would vote against nominating and governance committee members for failure to improve diversity if there were not at least two women directors on the board. Similarly, in December 2020, it announced that it would vote against directors who fail to act on board racial diversity.

Vanguard has declared that it will support proposals requesting diversity policies (e.g., the Rooney Rule) and board skills matrices.

In 2019, the New York State Comptroller voted against directors on boards with no women at 616 companies and nominating and governance committee members on boards with only one female director at 450 companies.

Beginning February 1, 2022, Institutional Shareholder Services (ISS), a proxy advisory firm, will recommend against nominating committee chairs (or some other directors) where the board has no apparent racially or ethnically diverse members (unless the board had a racially/ethnically diverse member at the previous annual meeting and makes a commitment to add a diverse director within the next year).

Shareholders and public and private institutional investors

1. Make investment mandates LGBTQ+ inclusive. Investors should develop diversity policies inclusive of sexual orientation and gender identity to guide investment and corporate governance decisions. This should be part of the corporation's social responsibility policies (including its Investment Principles, Policy, Corporate Responsibility Policy), due diligence process and ongoing management.

2. Champion LGBTQ+ inclusive bylaws in your portfolio. Shareholders and investors should champion amendment of companies' bylaws or governance guidelines to require the board of directors and other relevant stakeholders to consider sexual orientation and gender identity in the recruitment of director nominees.

3. Require LGBTQ+ inclusive board representation. Encourage corporations in which you invest to foster more diverse corporate boards. Investors should understand that sourcing qualified directors takes time, but they can ask for evidence that boards are making this a priority. Details on the steps being taken and results achieved to date should be readily available, ideally in the proxy, on the company website and in other shareholder communications.

4. Submit shareholder or proxy proposals to companies to implement diversity policies inclusive of sexual orientation and gender identity for their boards. Institutional investors and shareholders have played a key role in the push for board diversity.

5. Offer resources to assist companies in cultivating diverse boards. Public and private institutional investors can help companies find resources to draw diverse talent from existing databases, Quorum being the go-to place for LGBTQ+ board talent.

Board Demographics Reporting: Recommendations

1. We recommend that companies provide information to their stockholders about the demographic composition of their boards, at least annually, in a clear, comprehensive matrix format.
2. We encourage companies to provide demographic data for each board member, including gender and gender identity, ethnicity/race and sexual orientation, international experience, disability or veteran status.

For companies traded publicly in the U.S., this disclosure may be included in the annual proxy statement filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). (See language from Goldman Sachs' and Mastercard's Proxy statements as examples). For privately-held companies, disclosure may be included in their annual proxy statements, information statements distributed to stockholders (if applicable) or other communications. Companies should also consider disclosing this information in the governance section of their corporate websites.
3. We recommend a matrix format for disclosure of board demographic information such as the example on the following page, which was originally adapted from the New York City Comptroller's suggested form, and expanded and refined in consultation with leading institutional investors, Out Leadership's sister organizations and other stakeholders.

Goldman Sachs Board Diversity Language:

"Our Governance Committee considers a number of demographics and other factors, including race, gender identity, ethnicity, sexual orientation, culture, nationality and work experiences (including military service), seeking to develop a board that, as a whole, reflects diverse viewpoints, backgrounds, skills, experiences and expertise."

Mastercard Board Diversity Language:

"While the Board does not have a specific diversity policy, our Corporate Governance Guidelines provide that the NCG should seek to foster diversity on the Board when nominating directors for election by taking into account geographic diversity to reflect the geographic regions in which we operate in a manner approximately proportional to our business activity, as well as diversity of viewpoints, age, gender, sexual orientation, race, ethnicity, nationality and cultural background."

² African American or Black (Not Hispanic or Latino) - A person having origins in any of the black racial groups of Africa.

³ Alaskan Native or American Indian (Not Hispanic or Latino) - A person having origins in any of the original peoples of North and South America (including Central America), and who maintain tribal affiliation or community attachment.

⁵ Hispanic or Latinx - A person of Cuban, Mexican, Puerto Rican, South or Central American, or other Spanish culture or origin regardless of race.

⁶ Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander (Not Hispanic or Latino) - A person having origins in any of the peoples of Hawaii, Guam, Samoa, or other Pacific Islands.

⁷ White (Not Hispanic or Latino) - A person having origins in any of the original peoples of Europe, the Middle East, or North Africa.

FAQ's

Will board members be uncomfortable if asked to provide their demographic data?

Publicly-traded companies routinely ask directors to complete extensive D&O questionnaires for proxy disclosures, compliance, corporate governance and other purposes. Demographic data about directors represents a minor expansion to these requests, and one that solicits information requested by proxy advisory firms, investors and other company stakeholders, and which is required in some states. In addition, since companies routinely collect demographic data from their employees, many directors will be familiar with this data collection from their executive roles.

Will expanded disclosure of board demographics add litigation risk for companies?

Our discussions with corporate governance experts at leading law firms have not identified any incremental risk to companies in providing more expansive board demographic reporting. We encourage companies to consult with their corporate secretary and outside counsel in connection with proxy and other disclosures.

How can institutional investors help?

Institutional investors can engage with the management teams and boards of their portfolio companies and encourage companies to report on the demographic diversity of their boardrooms. Investors can also formally recommend that companies report on the demographics of their boards: For example, CalPERS' Governance and Sustainability Principles specify:

Boards should annually disclose their demographic information including race, ethnicity and gender. Ideally, companies should disclose their Employer Information Report, known as the EEO-1 report, or similar workforce demographic data to enable shareowners to assess the board's diversity relative to its workforce and compare companies in similar industries.¹⁸

Investors may also recommend disclosure formats, such as the New York City Comptroller's "Best Practices in Board Matrices" guide.¹⁹

¹⁸ CalPERS' Governance and Sustainability Principles, September 2019.

¹⁹ "Best Practices in Board Matrices", New York City Comptroller, August 2018. <https://comptroller.nyc.gov/wp-content/uploads/2018/08/NYC-Comptrollers-Office-Matrices-Compendium-8-2018-FINAL.pdf>

Board Demographics Reporting: Recommendations

1. One simple approach to collect demographic data about board members is through Director and Officer (“D&O”) questionnaires, which are typically completed annually to provide data for corporate compliance, disclosure, governance, insurance and other purposes, and (for publicly-traded companies) to enable preparation of proxy statements.
2. Example demographic questions are shown in the following page, and may be customized by each company. The ethnicity and race categories included in this example align with the categories generally used in the United States, and may be adapted for companies in other regions of the world.

Companies are asking for LGBTQ+ individuals to self-identify at the employee level. They need to also be asking at Board level.

* based on the 38 surveyed employers

How can general counsel, corporate secretaries and law firms help?

Outside and in-house counsel are a vital source of advice for Boards on corporate governance matters. Nominating committees and boards will look to their legal department leaders and to outside law firms for guidance regarding disclosures, and often rely on law firms' "best practice" approaches.

We encourage law firms to:

- Update their D&O questionnaire templates and example proxy disclosures to reflect these recommendations.
- Discuss with clients the opportunity to provide enhanced disclosure of board demographic diversity in proxy statements and other documents.

We encourage general counsels and corporate secretaries to:

- Discuss emerging trends in board demographic diversity disclosure with their boards and committees.
- Lead in the development of D&O questionnaires that collect expanded demographic data.
- Provide context and advice to board members to help facilitate the transition to expanded disclosure.

How can employee affinity groups help?

Operating within their companies, employee affinity groups representing under-represented communities can:

- Review their companies' director demographic disclosures, and encourage enhanced reporting.
- Collaborate with other employee affinity groups to encourage improved demographic disclosures.

How can board diversity advocacy organizations help?

Organizations advocating for other communities of directors, including those focused on diversity of gender and race/ethnicity, can partner to encourage companies to collect and report data on the demographic diversity of their boardrooms.

Parting Thoughts

LGBTQ+ inclusive board diversity has finally entered the long-standing dialogue on corporate diversity and governance policy. Yet, despite finally receiving attention from business leaders, the media, politicians and activists, LGBTQ+ board directors (and, for that matter, other minorities) still remain overwhelmingly and systematically underrepresented in the boardroom.

Action Leads to Impact

Board representation matters in terms of fairness, effectiveness and competitiveness. Companies make their most important decisions in the boardroom, including the direction of strategic, financial and labor matters that reach every corner of our economy. Including LGBTQ+ people in these conversations has positive consequences for companies, the communities they serve and society at large.

LGBTQ+ leaders cross the diverse spectrum, and thus Quorum and all of our efforts are intersectional by design. As the only global LGBTQ+ certified B Corporation, Out Leadership views its role as the convener of organizations across the LGBTQ+ and diverse communities. Our leadership in the Diverse Director Coalition is a great example of this principle in action. Quorum partners with Black Corporate Directors, ASCEND Pinnacle, Latino Corporate Directors and Women Corporate Directors on our work, and was proud to author and convene a joint letter of support for the Nasdaq Board Diversity Proposal (with Ropes & Gray), which we submitted to the SEC on December 31, 2020.

Moving forward, Quorum will continue to advocate for transformative policy and regulatory changes in the United States, Australia and around the world. We will continue to identify, develop and connect LGBTQ+ talent to board opportunities, as well as encourage the collection and dissemination of precise data on LGBTQ+ representation.

While Quorum has made significant progress over the past seven years, we're barely scratching the surface of the opportunity that LGBTQ+ inclusive boards present. We're grateful for the support of our sponsors—KPMG, Goldman Sachs, Ropes & Gray, Egon Zehnder and Diligent—for their foundational investment in our work. If we truly want to accomplish the change we're seeking, however, we need more companies to support our work and follow the example these five sponsors have set.

We encourage all companies, regardless of their size, industry or location, to join the Quorum consortium, and to support and amplify the crucial work of Quorum and our partners. We ask all companies to adopt LGBTQ+ inclusive board diversity reporting guidelines, require systematic inclusion of LGBTQ+ leaders from recruiters and nominating and governance committees, and most importantly, diversify the demographics of their own boards.

As we've seen time and again in the movement for full LGBTQ+ equality, the business community's leadership has ultimately changed the tide. It's once again time for our companies to step up and take the action that will ultimately benefit their employees, their businesses and the world.

American Electric Power	204	Energy	Diversity - The Criteria also includes the Company's statement regarding how the Board considers diversity in identifying nominees for our Board. The Criteria provide: Two central objectives in selecting board members and continued board service are that the skills, experiences and perspectives of the Board as a whole should be broad and diverse, and that the talents of all members of the Board should blend together to be as effective as possible. Diversity in gender, race, age, tenure of board service, geography and background of directors, consistent with the Board's requirements for knowledge and experience, are desirable in the mix of the Board. Our Corporate Governance Committee considers these criteria each year as it determines the slate of director nominees to recommend to the Board for election at our annual meeting. It also considers these criteria each time a new director is recommended for election or appointment to the Board. The Corporate Governance Committee is committed to including in each director search qualified candidates who reflect diverse backgrounds, including diversity of gender and race. The Board believes that its implementation of this policy is effective in maintaining the diversity of the members of the Board.	No	Yes	Yes	No	No	Yes	Yes

Arrow Electronics	110	Wholesalers: Electronics / Office Equipment	"Diversity - The Corporate Governance Committee has a thoughtful policy regarding diversity. Whenever the Corporate Governance Committee evaluates a potential candidate, it considers that individual in the context of the composition of the Board as a whole. The Board believes that its membership should reflect diversity in its broadest sense and, consistent with that philosophy, the Board has taken measures to diversify its makeup. All but one of the Company's director nominees are independent, and they have a broad range of experience in varying fields, including software programming and sales, chemical distribution, business strategy consulting, hospitality services, semiconductor manufacturing, consumer products, and energy. Three of the Company's directors are women, or 30% of the entire Board. A majority of the Company's directors hold or have held directorships at other U.S. public companies. Six of the director nominees, in addition to the Company's Chairman and CEO, have served as chief executive officers, and all have demonstrated superb leadership and intellectual and analytical skills gained from deep experience in management, finance, and corporate governance. Based on each nominee's experience, attributes, and skills, which exemplify the sought-after characteristics described above, the Corporate Governance Committee has concluded that each nominee possesses the appropriate qualifications to serve as a director of the Company." Ball Corp.	279	Packaging / Containers	Board Diversity - Our Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee works with a globally-recognized consulting firm to identify potential Board candidates. Working with a set of specifically designed guidelines and a matrix of characteristics including characteristics of diversity, the firm is able to comprehensively assess Board candidates. After a thorough review process by our consultant against the criteria that have been provided, the pool of qualified candidates is presented to the Committee. Selected candidates are further assessed and interviewed by the Committee, and by other Board members, considering the values and needs of the organization. Our Board embodies the principle of diversity. Over the past six years, we have added eight new directors to the Board, each of whom has significantly enhanced the diversity of the Board of Directors, creating a Board that reflects the diversity and inclusion of the organization. The Committee will continue to identify opportunities to improve the skills, qualifications, independence, diversity, tenure and refreshment of our Board when considering candidates in the future. BlackRock	219	Securities	Board Diversity - BlackRock and its Board believe diversity in the boardroom is critical to the success of the Company and its ability to create long-term value for our shareholders. The Board has and will continue to make diversity in gender, ethnicity, age, career experience and nationality – as well as diversity of mind – a priority when considering director candidates. The diverse backgrounds of our individual directors help the Board better evaluate BlackRock’s management and operations and assess risk and opportunities for the Company’s business model from a variety of perspectives. BlackRock’s commitment to Board diversity enhances the Board’s involvement in our Company’s multi-faceted long-term strategy and inspires deeper engagement with management, employees and clients around the world. Our Board has nominated 17 candidates for election, 14 of whom are independent. The slate of director nominees includes 5 women, 1 of whom is African American, and 6 non-U.S. or dual citizens. Several of our nominees live and work overseas in countries and regions that are key areas of growth and investment for BlackRock, including Canada, Mexico, the Middle East and Continental Europe. We believe that travel, and therefore our business, helps increase understanding, tolerance and common ground as people broaden their horizons, are introduced to other people and cultures, have new experiences, increase their knowledge and grow to appreciate the world in which we live. We also believe that our company, our stockholders, our customers and our employees are benefited by us having a diverse Board, diverse leadership and a diverse workforce. As a result, we seek to achieve a diverse business environment that includes people of different viewpoints, backgrounds, experience, gender, race and ethnic or national origin and other demographics. Our commitment to diversity begins at the top with our NCG Committee’s policy to consider diversity, which it views broadly in terms of viewpoints, backgrounds, experience, gender, race and ethnic or national origin, as a factor in recommending persons for election or appointment to the Board. The NCG Committee is committed to actively seeking out highly qualified women and individuals from minority groups to include in the pool from which Board nominees are chosen. Charles Schwab	271	Securities	Diversity - The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee considers the qualifications and experience represented on the board when identifying director nominees and assessing the composition of the board. The board recognizes that a variety of viewpoints is vital to effective decision-making, constructive dialogue, and a healthy boardroom culture. As discussed in the 'Director Qualifications' section above, the board's evaluation encompasses the diversity of experience and background of directors. This consideration includes diversity of skill sets and experience as well as background, including race, ethnicity and gender. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee considers these qualifications and regularly assesses the overall effectiveness of the board in maintaining a balance of perspectives important to the company's business. Cummins	132	Industrial Machinery	"Importance of Diversity - One of our core values is diversity and inclusion. In evaluating candidates for our Board, our Governance and Nominating Committee considers only potential directors who share this value, as well as our other core values of integrity, caring, excellence and teamwork. As reflected in our corporate governance principles, we are committed to equal employment opportunity in assembling our Board. We believe that directors with different backgrounds and experiences makes our boardroom and our company stronger. As our Committee considers possible directors, it seeks out candidates who represent the diverse perspectives of all of our stakeholders. We believe our Board has been effective in assembling a highly qualified, diverse group of directors. We currently have three female directors, one African-American director and two directors from Latin America. Interpublic Group	308	Advertising / Marketing	Leadership Commitment and Accountability on Diversity - In 2006, IPG formalized its commitment to making progress and holding key executives at IPG and our agencies accountable for achieving tangible diversity goals. This commitment included increasing the diversity of our board and including D&I metrics in our incentive compensation awards for executives. We were the first holding company in our industry to appoint dedicated leadership to drive progress and we are one of very few global enterprises identified by The Wall Street Journal to have established this role as a member of the senior executive team with direct reporting to our Chairman and CEO, as well as our Chief Operating Officer. IPG's Global CEO Diversity Council includes Chief Executives from all IPG companies, and works to promote collaboration as well as provide tools and resources to our top executives. Representation - In the US, for the 2018 EEO1 report filing, over half of all IPG managers, including executive, senior and mid-level management were women. In addition, one-third of IPG's current Board and over 40% of this year's director nominees are women, and IPG considers diversity as a key component when reviewing candidates.	No	Yes	No	No	No	No	No

Omnicom Group	211	Advertising / Marketing	Diversity and Inclusion - Omnicom believes that workplace diversity creates value for the Company, enhances the quality of work we create for clients and is a cornerstone of our positive corporate culture. We know that a workforce reflecting the demographics of our society is better poised to create effective campaigns for our clients that resonate with a diverse population. With our global presence, we believe it is important that our workforce reflects our global community. This commitment to diversity starts within the boardroom. Our Board includes six women and four African Americans, including Leonard S. Coleman, Jr., our Lead Independent Director. Our Audit, Compensation and Finance Committees are Chaired by female directors, and the Chair of our Governance Committee is African American. The diversity of our Board was recognized by Fortune Magazine, with Omnicom being named one of only six Fortune 500 companies that has more women than men on its Board of Directors. Internal focus and accountability - Omnicom created the role of Senior Vice President and Chief Diversity Officer at our corporate office in 2009, reporting directly to the CEO, and this role has since been expanded throughout our Company. Ryder System	354	Trucking / Truck Leasing	Diversity. The Board believes that diversity is one of many important considerations in board composition. As noted above, the Governance Committee evaluates the current composition of the Board from time-to-time to ensure that the directors reflect a diversity of viewpoints, professional experience, backgrounds, education and skills. The Governance Committee is committed to seeking out highly qualified women and minority candidates as well as candidates with diverse backgrounds, experiences and skills as part of the director search that the Company undertakes, and to ensuring that candidates are drawn from a pool that includes diverse candidates, including women and minority candidates. Ryder believes that a diverse group of directors brings a broader range of experiences to the Board and generates a greater variety of innovative ideas and perspectives, and, therefore, is in a better position to make complex decisions. In addition, Ryder believes its shareholders appreciate a diverse Board, which is more reflective of the overall investment community and markets we and our customers serve. The Governance Committee and the full Board believe that the director nominees embody the breadth of backgrounds and experience necessary for a balanced and effective Board. The Nominating and Governance Committee regularly reviews the skillsets and composition of our Board to determine the appropriate balance of skills, qualifications and backgrounds to best serve our Company's needs. At Truist, we are proud of our long commitment to diversity among our teammates, members of Executive Leadership and Board of Directors. Of our 22 directors, seven are women, representing almost one-third of our Board, four are African-American, comprising almost 20% of our Board, two are Hispanic, and together 45% of our Board is either racially, ethnically or gender diverse. Moreover, women hold key leadership positions on our Board, such as our Compensation and Human Capital Committee Chair, Technology Committee Chair and the Truist Bank Trust Committee Chair. Our directors also have a broad range of tenures on our Board and diverse backgrounds and expertise, which offers strong and broad perspectives on the financial services industry and the trends and evolution currently taking place in banking. United Parcel Service	43	Mail, Package and Freight Delivery	Board Diversity - A wide range of perspectives is critical to effective corporate governance and oversight. When constituting the board and identifying director nominees, overall a key consideration of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is diversity with respect to gender, age, ethnicity, skills, experience and other factors. The Committee assesses the effectiveness of its diversity efforts through periodic evaluations of the board's composition. Our 12 director nominees consist of three women, one African-American, two Europeans and an individual who spent his entire professional career in Asia. The director nominees range in age between 49 and 74 years.	No	Yes	Yes	Yes	No	Yes	Yes

US Foods Holding	116	Wholesalers: Food and Grocery	'Commitment to Diversity - The Board believes that maintaining a diverse membership enhances the Board's discussions and enables the Board to better represent all of the Company's constituents. The Board is currently comprised of two sitting chief executive officers, three former chief executive officers, two former chief financial officers, a successful restaurateur, and a tenured business school professor. With our three most recent director appointments, the Board reflects a more diverse composition, with two of our directors being women and one of our directors being ethnically diverse. Our Corporate Governance Guidelines provide that individuals will be considered for nomination to the Board based on their business and professional experience, judgment, gender, race and ethnicity, skills, background, and other unique characteristics as the Board deems appropriate. Accordingly, the Board is committed to actively seeking out highly qualified women and individuals from minority groups as well as candidates with diverse or non-traditional backgrounds, skills, and experiences as part of the director search process.' W.R. Berkley	402	Insurance: Property and Casualty (Stock)	"Board Refreshment, Tenure and Diversity .We value having directors with diverse perspectives and experience. Each of the Company's directors has served in leadership roles and has significant experience in areas relevant to the Company. We continue to actively seek qualified candidates who add value and diverse skills, experience and perspectives to further refresh the Board. Given the complexity and long-term nature of the Company's business, the Company is best served by having a Board with an in-depth understanding of the Company and the insurance industry. Developing that expertise takes time, and the Board of Directors believes that directors who have overseen our business over the full insurance cycle are typically more effective. The addition of new directors in recent years provides for a period of transition with certain long-tenured directors. Their overlap provides the opportunity for education, mentorship and stability. The tenure of our directors is distributed across periods that could be considered in the insurance industry to be relatively short-term, medium-term and long-term, providing a balance of perspectives. The current average tenure of our directors is 22 years. We have refreshed 33% of the independent Board members over the past three years, improving the Board's gender, age and ethnic diversity and enhancing the Board's collective expertise - notably in communications, governmental operations, tax and other public company leadership and board experience."	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	No	Yes

Wells Fargo	30	Commercial Banks	Importance of Board Diversity - Although the GNC does not have a separate policy specifically governing diversity, as described in the Corporate Governance Guidelines and its charter the GNC will consider, in identifying first-time candidates or nominees for director, and in evaluating individuals recommended by shareholders, the current composition of our Board in light of the diverse communities and geographies we serve and the interplay of the candidate's or nominee's experience, education, skills, background, gender, race, ethnicity, and other qualities and attributes with those of the other Board members. The GNC also incorporates this broad view of diversity into its director nomination process by taking into account all of the factors above, in addition to having a diverse candidate pool for each director search the Board undertakes, when evaluating and recommending director nominees to serve on our Board so that our Board's composition as a whole appropriately reflects the current and anticipated needs of our Board and our Company. In implementing its practice of considering diversity, the GNC may place more emphasis on attracting or retaining director nominees with certain specific skills or experience, such as industry, regulatory, operational, or financial expertise, depending on the circumstances and the composition of our Board at the time. Gender, race, and ethnic diversity also have been, and will continue to be, a priority for the GNC and our Board	No	Yes	Yes	Yes	No	Yes	No

Wynn Resorts	454	Hotels, Casinos, Resorts	Board composition and diversity - Our Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is committed to maintaining a Board of Directors ("Board") with a broad spectrum of experience and expertise that will promote the presentation and consideration of different points of view, meet the Company's evolving needs and strengthen our diversity. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee continues to investigate potential candidates as part of its ongoing commitment to enhance the diversity, experience, and strength of the entire Board. In 2019, the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee reinforced the Board's commitment to diversity of experiences and perspectives among its members. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee amended the Company's Corporate Governance Guidelines to establish a policy to consider candidates with a diverse background when evaluating new candidates for the Board. This change was implemented to ensure that any initial slate of candidates includes those with a diversity of race, gender and ethnicity. Additionally, the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee has established a goal of achieving 50% diversity among Board members.	No	Yes	Yes	Yes	No	No	No

Xerox Holdings	347	Computers - Office Equipment	Board Diversity - Our Corporate Governance Guidelines dictate that diversity should be considered by the Corporate Governance Committee in the director identification and nomination process. Although the Board does not establish specific goals with respect to diversity, the Board's overall diversity is a significant consideration in the director nomination process. This means that the Corporate Governance Committee seeks nominees who bring a variety of business backgrounds, experiences and perspectives to the Board. In February 2020, the Board amended our Corporate Governance Guidelines to require that the initial list of candidates from which new, management-supported director nominees are chosen by the Corporate Governance Committee should include, but not be limited to, qualified women and minority candidates. We believe that the backgrounds and qualifications of the directors, considered as a group, should provide a broad diversity of experience, professions, skills, geographic representations, knowledge and abilities that will allow the Board to fulfill its responsibilities. OUT LEADERSHIP

Out Leadership is the oldest and largest global LGBTQ+ business advisory that partners with the world's most influential companies to build business opportunities, cultivate talent, and drive LGBTQ+ equality forward. We believe that LGBTQ+ inclusion positively impacts business results, and that including LGBTQ+ people at the most senior level of executive leadership builds business. We call this idea Return on Equality™.

Comprised of more than 80 global member organizations and dedicated to cross-industry collaboration, Out Leadership is a certified B Corporation. Out Leadership convenes CEOs, business leaders and allies at exclusive invitation only events across 4 continents. Out Leadership also operates three talent initiatives: Quorum, which aims to increase LGBTQ+ representation on corporate boards; OutNEXT, the first global talent development program for emerging LGBTQ+ leaders; and OutWOMEN, connecting senior level LGBTQ+ women in business.

To learn more about how to get involved with Quorum, please email info@outleadership.com
